Each county's campaign will be carried on through the efforts of the county judge, county clerk, school superintendent, county agent, head of the Parent-Teacher organization, and other leaders, all working with the governor's salvage chairman under the direction of Judge E. C. O'Rear, Frankfort, state salvage chairman, and Mrs. T. C. Carroll, Shepherdsville, state salvage chairman.

Kentuckians are being asked to make a survey of their homes, farms, factories, and mines to round up every available pound of scrap. Metal can be sold, but in most states it is being donated to the government scrap stock pile. Altho the drive doesn't actually get under way until October 12, salvage leaders have asked Kentuckians to round up their scrap and have it available for collection. Army trucks from Fort Knox and the state highway department will be made available for collecting the scrap. Each person turning in scrap will be given a receipt crediting his contribution toward the individual prize of $200, the county prizes, and toward the organization he represents.

Morgan county's quota for the drive is 1,682,700 pounds, or 842 tons.

PAPERS SPONSOR SCRAP DRIVE

$5,000 IN PRIZES OFFERED

Responding to an urgent appeal by the government, Kentucky's newspapers have taken over the job of mobilizing a "people's army" to conduct an intensive state-wide campaign October 12-31 to collect 285,000,000 pounds of scrap metal in the state.

Prizes totaling $5,000 have been posted by the newspapers to add incentive to the drive. Grand prize is $1,500 which will go to the county that turns in the largest amount of scrap metal per capita. A goal of 100 pounds for every man, woman, and child in Kentucky has been set by the government.

The campaign was announced last Thursday in Louisville at a meeting attended by representatives from virtually every newspaper in Kentucky's 120 counties. Gov. Keen Johnson, who attended the organization meeting, designated Henry H. McClaskey, Louisville advertising executive, general director of the campaign.

Newspaper chairmen have been appointed in twenty districts to coordinate the drive with each county's salvage chairman or chairwoman. Governor Johnson has obtained the full support of these county salvage leaders to the campaign.

The Kentucky drive resulted from appeals by Donald Nelson, chief of the war production board, and leaders of the army and navy who summoned newspaper publishers to Washington several weeks ago and asked for their cooperation. Mr. Nelson said that unless the people go out and gather up their scrap metal and turn it in to the government, great quantities of the steel mills which are turning out materials for tanks, guns, and ships and other war weapons, will have to suspend a large part of their operations during the winter.

Each county's campaign will be carried on through the efforts of the county judge, county clerk, school superintendent, county agent, head of the Parent-Teacher organization, and other leaders, all working with the governor's salvage chairman under the direction of Judge E. C. O'Rear, Frankfort, state salvage chairman, and Mrs. T. C. Carroll, Shepherdsville, state salvage chairman.

Kentuckians are being asked to make a survey of their homes, farms, factories, and mines to round up every available pound of scrap. Morgan county's quota for the drive is 1,682,700 pounds, or 842 tons.

To this union were born five children: Mrs. Gladys Phillips, Lebanon, O.; Mrs. Roxie Phillips, Mariemont, O.; Mrs. Daisy Havens, Ezel, Ky.; Volney Hollon, Barstow, Calif.; and Mrs. Maurine Allen, deceased; one brother, J. B. Murphy, Ezel, Ky.; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Oldfield, Des Moines, Iowa, and Mrs. Roxie Murphy, Mize, Ky.; and nine grandchildren.

Sister Hollon was converted and gave her life to God in early life and was a member of the church of God at Ezel. She lived a faithful life in her Christ, frequently telling her folks she was ready to go and be with Jesus.

She reached this higher sphere with a broad horizon by steadily and patiently climbing life's ladder round by round, in sweet, cheerful, uplifting services to those about her, and the beautiful influence of a pure religion spread over her life and character as spotless and charming as was ever possessed by any of the noble women who lived and died during the ages that are gone.

SCRAP MEETING

AT COURTHOUSE TODAY

A mass meeting has been called for 2 p.m. today (Thursday) at the courthouse at West Liberty for discussion of the salvage emergency, and the general public is invited to attend. This means YOU.

William Goodell of Louisville and others will speak. Here is something YOU can do to help win the war. Find out more about it at the courthouse this afternoon.

Brongs Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Brong, who had been visiting relatives in New York and Pennsylvania since August 5, returned home Tuesday of this week. Mr. Brong was ill during most of his absence, having spent over five weeks in bed, but is now improving.

IN OFFICERS' TRAINING

Corporal Glen A. Brown, formerly a Morgan county boy, but now a resident of Morehead, was inducted into the army Aug. 4 and has been stationed with the engineering corps at Camp Edwards, Mass.

Mr. Brown had had three years in army service prior to this. He has passed his examination for officers' training, scoring 120 points out of 125, and is now in officers' training school. He is the son of Della and Paris Brown of Morgan county and the husband of Ruth E. (Lacy) Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Lacy of Morehead.

FARM LABOR PROGRAM

A farm labor program to aid hard-pressed farmers in certain areas of specialized crops to supplement their available local labor at rush periods of the year has been set up by the U. S. department of agriculture and the war manpower commission.

The major feature of the program is the transportation of labor from areas where it is not presently needed to others where the need is pressing. Such movement of workers will only be undertaken upon the request of growers in the sections where shortages exist, and will not affect areas where sufficient labor is available.

Under this program farmers who are unable to find labor will apply to the United States employment service. If it is necessary for the employment service to recruit workers at a distance, the farm security administration of the department of agriculture will be called in and will arrange for transportation.

The growers agree to pay $5 per worker as their share of the transportation cost, and farm security will pay the rest, including meals on the way. The growers also must guarantee employment to the workers for a definite period at the prevailing agricultural wage, which may not be less than 30 cents an hour or the piece rate equivalent. These provisions apply only where laborers have been transported by farm security for 200 miles or more.

Farm security arrangements for the workers' return transportation when their work agreements have been carried out. Where migratory camps are not available, the farmers furnish housing which has been approved by the farm security.

The program will reach only a few critical areas this year, as funds are too limited and time too short to do very much in the way of mass transportation of workers. Howard H. Gordon, of Raleigh, N. C., farm security regional director, has pointed out.

In the five states of the region—North Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, and Tennessee—there was a recent transportation of 140 workers from the area of Danville, Virginia, and about the same number from the mountains of eastern Kentucky to the apple and peach orchards and the tomato and onion fields of western New York state. Under the plan, the labor was recruited by the employment service and transportation furnished by farm security.

Slightly earlier, five bus loads of workers were taken from the mountain counties of Perry and Jackson in Kentucky to the bluegrass section of Shelby county to cut tobacco and spike it in the barns. In this case, the labor was recruited by the employment service, but transported by the Shelby county farm bureau in school buses.

Agricultural leaders of the section have reported in the public press that the mountain labor, unaccustomed to working in tobacco, made excellent workers where farmers of the bluegrass farms undertook to teach them how to cut and spike the stalks.

Kentucky farmers of the western part of the state have asked for similar labor to be sent from the mountains to work in their hemp and soybean crops and plans are underway to accomplish this.

"It is entirely possible," Mr. Gordon points out, "that workers so transported for temporary work may find opportunities for establishing themselves and their families permanently in such new areas. In this way, the double benefit would be accomplished of taking labor from sections where it definitely is not needed and providing it where it is in keen demand."

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THESE orange crate bedside tables are useful and easy to make; they are very decorative, too, when fitted out as illustrated. These were lined with green oil cloth cut, fitted and pasted as shown. The full skirt pieces were tacked to the top of the sides and lapped a few inches around the back. A top cover with a three-inch frill all around was then added. The bedspread is trimmed with five-inch frills of the muslin and one-inch straight bands over seams and for the monograms.

NOTE: These bedside tables are from BOOK 7 of the series of 32-page booklets that Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers. BOOK 2 contains a complete alphabet for making monograms similar to the one on the bedspread. Books are 10 cents each. A hot iron transfer pattern for eight cornucopia and poppy designs suitable for linens or for framing will be included with each order for two books. Address:

A Circular Letter Stirs Washington . . . Freedom of the Press . . . Reason for Japs Pending Attack on Russian Siberia . . .

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

WASHINGTON.—Washington, official and unofficial, has been hot and bothered for weeks over a circular letter sent out by an agency here which has been supplying a sort of "low down" on Washington to bankers, business men and others throughout the country for a number of years.

This writer first heard about the letter in New York, where it was learned that a number of clients for this service were so indignant that such an attack should be made on the government that they had notified the agency to discontinue its service to them at the expiration of the present subscriptions.

This was a big surprise to the writer, because, like most active newspaper men and observers generally in Washington, he had admired this particular service for a good many years.

So on returning to Washington one of the first mandatory jobs was to hunt up the letter which had caused so much furor and read it.

There followed conversations with officials and unofficial observers, newspaper and magazine men familiar with various parts of the picture. The net result is that the writer believes the criticism of the letter was not well taken, that the letter OUGHT to have said what it did, and that the facts were not even exaggerated.

Matter of Public Record
The point of this discussion revolves around freedom of the press. It is true that this circular letter does not pose as being part of the "Press." It is not a matter of public record.

In general it pointed to certain grave weak spots in the government's war organization. It criticized President Roosevelt, mostly for his good humor and patience with squabbles among his subordinates and with plain downright inefficiency when he liked personally the men and women involved.

It went on to insist that not only a shakeup was necessary, but that certain individuals, some of them of cabinet rank, should be thrown out.

It did NOT advocate the supplanting of Nelson, saying that he was probably the best man for the job likely to be found, but it warned that if something were not done Nelson might be thrown out eventually and that thereupon the army would take over.

Such things SHOULD be printed if the writers believe them, regardless of whether they are right or wrong.

Nothing in the letter could possibly be news to the enemy.

Selfishness Prompts Japs' Action in China Zone

If that all-out attack by the Japanese on Siberia about which we have been hearing so much is really ordered it will be the first time in this war that the Japanese army moved in force. This sounds strange when we remember Malaya, Singapore, Burma, the Dutch East Indies, and China, but comparatively it is true.

The best estimates in official hands here as to the disposition of the Japanese army do not total quite a million men in all the war theaters named. In fact even including China the strength of the Japanese army in those regions probably is not more than 750,000 men.

It is well known here that the Japanese army numbered at least 3,000,000 men. Some experts put it higher. Subtracting the full million, which is the highest estimate of Japanese troops so far employed, this leaves 2,000,000 available for something else.

Nearly everyone, in and out of authority, and regardless of which of the United Nations he serves, believes that the big effort will be in Siberia. Japan has long coveted the northern half of Saghalien island, owned by Russia, and also the maritime provinces of Siberia. Some think she would like to extend her sway from 500 to 1,000 miles inland.

Actually, with the conquests already made, that would give her all of eastern Asia, from the North pole down to the Indian ocean, and right up to the boundary of India. Also she has the rich Dutch islands, which she would very much like to hold forever.

But she knows that she cannot hold them unless Germany wins the war. If Germany should crack, whether in the near future or after several more years of fighting, the Japanese war lords know perfectly well it would just be a matter of time until the United Nations forced her to disgorge everything she has so easily conquered in this war—and perhaps even some that she had before, for instance Korea.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

New Allied Air Blows Take Heavy Toll Of Jap-Held Airports in New Guinea; Nelson Warns of War Production Cut; U. S. to Control Truck, Taxi Operation

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The above picture appeared in the Japanese propaganda magazine, "Freedom," and was brought back to this country by an American repatriated in the recent diplomatic exchange of nationals. The Japs describe this picture as showing a part of the 1,300 Americans captured at Wake island on their way to a prison camp in Kagawa province. The black uniformed officer is identified as Commander Winfield Scott Cunningham, ex-garrison chief at Wake. The picture is being used by the enemy as propaganda.

RUSSIA:

Nazi Advance

While Nazi troops besieging Stalingrad battled for a decision the German air force was reported to be concentrating its attack on Volga shipping, rail and highway communications as far southeast as Astrakhan, where the Volga flows into the Caspian sea.

The Russian high command announced that re-enforced German troops had made a further advance southwest of Stalingrad. German broadcasts told of Nazi troops entering the southern part of the city after capturing additional fortifications. However, the Russians claimed they were holding firm to the west.

The Red communique reported a new enemy drive on the western bank of the Don river, south of Voronezh, employing an entire infantry division and 100 tanks. The Germans were said to have lost 2,000 officers and men. In the Volkov sector east of Leningrad the Germans were reported battling for a 12-mile stretch of the important Leningrad-Vologda railway.

Brighter reports came from the deep Caucasus. German troops in the mountainous region around Moxd were said to be "withdrawing northward." Observers noted that recent snows in the Caucasus may have caused the withdrawal and said that the Axis may have relinquished hope of reaching the Caspian sea in that area before winter.

RAIDS ON BRITAIN:

From the Stratosphere

Germany's third new weapon for daylight bombing raids against England was revealed in London with a disclosure that Nazi stratosphere bombers, equipped with super-charged Diesel motors, have made several daylight attacks on Great Britain.

The first of these bombing raids on Britain were made from altitudes of approximately 40,000 feet. The bombers were modified Junkers 86-P's equipped with experimental pressure cabins. Others used were four-motor Heinkel 177's, carrying eight tons of bombs, equalling the capacity of Britain's biggest bombers, and the bomb-carrying Focke-Wulf 190's. The latter planes are primarily fighters and they are able to speed low over coastal targets, getting away before the fast British Spitfires can get at them.

PRODUCTION CUT:

Faced by Industry

In a straight-to-the-point speech, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, warned the nation that we are not winning the war and that, although the nation's production is not what it should be, shifts must be made in material allotment that will enforce layoffs and production changes.

He pointed out that further cuts in materials for civilian use and shifts in materials from one war product to another would be made such cuts and assignments would result in enforced layoffs for men and women intent on production for victory.

NICKEL: Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced that the new nickel will contain copper, manganese, silver—and no nickel.

AUTHORITY: Organized with the assistance of United States experts, a central autonomous authority will be set up by the Brazilian government in a move toward stricter control over all phases of the nation's war effort.

PACIFIC FRONT:

Action Continues

Allied bombing attacks against Japanese bases in New Guinea continued with smashing blows taking a heavy toll in the battle area. Lae and Salamaua were targets for the main attacks. Two bombers were destroyed on the ground at the Lae airdrome, where 17 tons of bombs were dropped on installations.

The communique stated that ground action in the Owen Stanley mountain range, where the Japs were halted about 40 miles north of the Port Moresby base, was confined to patrol activity.

Meanwhile, the battle of the Solomons seemed to have settled down to a battle of supply lines. The United States and Australia have poured planes and supplies in to the marines on Guadalcanal and Tulagi against Japanese sea and air opposition.

The Japs have not attacked in force since the major battle on August 24 and 25, when U. S. forces defeated an enemy invasion force of more than 40 ships. They have continued their occasional bombing forays and attacks with light naval craft. Recently the Japanese have bombed from high altitudes, using delayed action bombs.

MORGENTHAU:

Lauds Bond Sales

Flatly denying that he regards the voluntary war bond sales program as a "failure," Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau declared in a statement to the war savings staff that the treasury "will continue to rely upon voluntary lending for a large part of our financing."

The secretary's statement was made following a recent press conference. He said: "The impression seems to have spread that I regard the voluntary war bond program as a 'failure.' This is not only a distortion of anything I have said on the subject, but it is also an injustice to the hundreds of thousands of devoted volunteers in all parts of the country."

TRANSPORTATION:

U. S. Control

Before the operators of 5,000,000 trucks, 154,000 busses and 50,000 taxicabs can obtain gasoline, tires or parts after November 15, they will be forced to show "certificates of war necessity."

Government control of these vehicles as a conservation measure was announced by Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation. Eastman said the certificates for commercial vehicles would require a tire check every 5,000 miles, or every 60 days—whichever occurs first. Certificates, he indicated, would be issued to all types of trucks and vehicles built primarily for transporting property and passengers and others available for public usage, such as ambulances and hearses.

The control measure was inaugurated to limit the use of vehicles to operations necessary to the war effort, or to the essential domestic economy.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

FOURTH TERM DATA

Not much has been said about it publicly, but already the question of the Fourth Term has come in for a lot of backstage discussion.

Republicans, worried about it, want to do everything possible to block it. And in the vicinity of the White House, some of those who would like to stay around indefinitely, want to do everything possible to encourage it.

But those closest to the President are convinced that there will be no Fourth Term. Even if he could get it, they say that this is the last thing Roosevelt wants.

Or even if there should be a tremendous demand on the part of the public against changing horses in midstream, they don't think the President would yield. His ideals for preservation of the democratic system are too deep-rooted, they say, for him to continue in office for what would be a total of 16 years.

However, the President does have one very definite political goal, and that is to retain control of congress during his two remaining years in office.

He remembers all too clearly, when he was assistant secretary of the navy, the chaos which the country faced when Woodrow Wilson lost control of the house of representatives. He also remembers the troubles faced by Herbert Hoover, Calvin Coolidge and his cousin Teddy Roosevelt when they faced a rebellious congress during their last two years in office.

So the President is out to win the house, and win it at all costs next November. To that end he will leave Washington—something he hasn't done since 1940—and take a swing through the Middle West some time in October.

JOBS TO REPUBLICANS

Some of FDR's political advisers, among them Democratic Chairman Ed Flynn, tell him privately that the battle to control the house in November will not be easy. One trouble is patronage.

Patronage is a word which may bring a bad smell to the public, but to the politician it is like the smell of raw meat to a circus lion. He will not perform without it.

Back in the early days of the New Deal, Jim Farley kept a little card index of how every congressman voted on important issues and what jobs he had received. When the congressman stopped voting right, he stopped getting jobs for his constituents. That system worked like a charm—for a while. But in recent years Roosevelt himself has given more and more jobs to Republicans, while Leon Henderson, the greatest job dispenser of war times, has placed everything in the hands of state governors, a large proportion of them Republicans.

So today, the President's political friends say that his definition of patronage is: "Something which you hold out to your friends, but use to reward your enemies."

And these friends have had the short end of the patronage stick for so long that, as November approaches, FDR is finding a lot of the old politicians unwilling to go to bat for him, while the rewarded enemies won't stay put.

So the congressional elections are going to be tougher than a lot of people realize, and you will probably see certain seasoned political sea-dogs, among them Ed Flynn, resigning from the picture before many weeks are over.

Note: Patronage under the old congressional system had a lot of faults, but it was not half as bad as under the present dollar-a-year man system, where somebody gets a key WPB job or a cellophane commission merely because he is the friend of a big accounting firm or a partner of a Wall Street broker.

One of the best jobs of Americanization has been done by the Illinois State Register of Springfield in its series of editorials and radio programs paying tribute to the big contribution foreign groups have made to the culture and progress of the U. S. A.

The radio program, called "Americans All—Immigrants All" told the story of how the men of many races had contributed to this country—the Italians, including men like Frank Capra, LaGuardia, and Ernest Cuneo; the Welsh, including Charles Evans Hughes; the Slavs—Louis Adamic, Sikorsky, Seversky; Joseph Pulitzer from Hungary, John Philip Sousa from Portugal, George Vouras from Greece and thousands of others.

According to fair-minded Senator Styles Bridges, who sits on the Republican side of the aisle, Democratic Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois is one of the coming men of the country.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 27

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JOSEPH: AN EXAMPLE OF FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:1-15; 47:11, 12. GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

Forgiveness, opening the way for the restoration of fellowship and the showing of kindness, brought the story of Joseph and his brethren to a happy ending. Under the good hand of God the story which began with tragedy is brought to a conclusion of blessing.

Following the earnest plea of Judah, the heart of Joseph could no longer withhold itself from the full expression of affection and devotion to his family.

I. Love Overcomes Fear (vv. 1-4).

Joseph tenderly shielded the family troubles from the eyes and ears of strangers by sending out the Egyptians. It was the first step of consideration which paved the way for reconciliation. How often just the opposite is done—airing family affairs before the world, and humiliating those who may be in the wrong, thus making it difficult for them to admit their guilt.

Then, too, this was a moment too tender and delicate to be seen by outsiders. The tears of a strong man like Joseph mean a deep movement of spirit—a solemn and often a sacred moment.

It should also be noted that the brothers were afraid, and well they might be, because of their sin against Joseph. After almost 50 years these unrepentant men found themselves face to face with the one whom they had supposed they had disposed of, and they knew their sin had found them out. It always does, sooner or later, but inevitably.

How great and noble was the forgiving love of Joseph; an example to us, especially appropriate and needed in a world of hate and bitterness.

II. Grace Overrules Sin (vv. 5-8).

The guilt of these men was none the less and Joseph could not remove it, but he encouraged them by showing how God had used their evil devices to work out His own good pleasure. He can make the wrath of man to praise Him (Ps. 76:10).

It is worth stressing again that in the very hour when the prospects for Joseph's future usefulness seemed ruined, God was opening the door to the greatest experiences of his life and was preparing him to serve the thousands whose lives were saved by his wisdom and ability in the years of famine.

Nothing is more important in the life of a child of God than to be yielded to His will, unmoved by circumstances, abiding His time, responding to His guidance whether it be by the opening or closing of doors, prosperity or adversity. And herein is the marvel of it all—even sin may be overruled by God's grace for His own glory. That does not invite anyone to sin that grace may abound (Rom. 6:1, 2), but it does offer encouragement to the one who has fallen, that God can redeem the years that the locust have eaten (Joel 2:25).

Our lesson also sets us an example of how true forgiveness acts, something we need. So often when forgiveness is asked or granted there is an "I can forgive but I can't forget" attitude, which means that while hostilities have ceased, at least temporarily, there is no real friendship or the disposition to show kindness. Is there any real forgiveness at all in such an attitude of heart and mind? We fear not.

III. Kindness Provides the Best (vv. 9-15; 47:11, 12).

It might have been enough to send food and a kind greeting with the brothers to their own land, but love does not seek the minimum expression of its feeling. It asks not how little, but how much can I give or do.

Bringing his aged father and brothers into the land of plenty was not enough, Joseph also gave to them the "best of the land" (47:11). His thoughtful consideration in sending for his father (Gen. 46:5-7) was part of the same piece of kindness.

Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or riches, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families. Often they are ashamed of the broken bodies, the humble apparel, the broken or uneducated speech of their parents. They fear lest their new-found friends in the circle of wealth and supposed "position" will think them strange or ridiculous. God pity the man or woman who is ashamed of a humble or aged father and mother!

Joseph, who really had an exalted position gained by merit and by the blessing of God, never forgot his place before God as a son in the family and as a brother. Let us consider him and do likewise.

An Idea or Two

Nations fight to protect what they have or to grab what others have.

Victory gardens will be popular in 1943 and mighty handy for food.

The newspaper that does something for its readers can do something for its advertisers.

"Education" being what it is, it is hard to understand why so few students like school.

Nobody else is interested in the good excuses that you have for not accomplishing something.

There are still some people who have the idea that the war was undertaken to provide news.

The Red army, for all its communism, is saving the lives of thousands of American soldiers.

Inflation is a danger to sound economy and a threat to the financial stability of every individual.

While we believe that the Axis nations have lost the war, we have not won it, and the price must yet be paid.

How many prophets, a year ago, expected Japan to have control of our sources of tin, rubber, and quinine?

It is just possible, brother, that enemy propaganda is behind much of the nonsense that you hear whispered around.

The idea that congressmen have too much attention centered on the approaching election could be dissipated by congress.

We cannot understand the mentality of those who desire war when peace is possible or yearn for peace when it is impossible.

The first surprise of the present war was the speed of Nazi panzer units; the next surprise will be the speed of the Nazi collapse.

Rumors that circulate during war time test the intelligence of those who hear them and expose the stupidity of many who repeat them.

The loyal American who is too lazy to collect scrap metal for use in our war production program is not as loyal or as smart as he might be.

In its great war production effort, the steel industry of America this year will consume about three times as much scrap iron and steel as it needed in 1938. Hurry in the scrap.

Steel freighters whose keels were actually laid after the attack on Pearl Harbor, within three months were completed and carried the bombs across the Pacific which helped to win the Coral Sea battle in May. The new steel used in those freighters or in those bombs was made partly from scrap collected in this country only a few weeks or months before the battle. Get your scrap in the scrap.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Officers and members of Paulina Chapter No. 360, O. E. S., met Monday evening, Sept. 21, at the Masonic hall for the regular meeting and installation of officers for the ensuing year.

The meeting opened with the usual ceremonies with Barletta Wrather, matron, presiding. The regular business of the chapter having been taken care of, Mrs. Wrather in a very fitting manner, expressed to her officers and members her thanks for the splendid spirit of loyalty and cooperation given her during her year's work as worthy matron.

Mrs. Ida Henry, installing officer, was escorted to the east, and assumed charge of the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Wrather were presented at the altar, and Mrs. J. L. Blair and W. O. Pelfrey very beautifully sang, "I Love You Truly," to Mr. and Mrs. Wrather, the out-going patron and matron. An addenda was given under the supervision of Elizabeth Elam, associate matron for the past year, honoring the out-going worthy matron. A bouquet of lovely tea roses was given to Mrs. Wrather. W. O. Pelfrey, on behalf of Paulina chapter, presented Mrs. Wrather a past-matron's jewel, conveying to her the chapter's appreciation for her year's work as worthy matron.

Mrs. Henry in an impressive and gracious manner installed the following officers for the coming year: Elizabeth Elam, worthy matron; W. G. Ratliff, worthy patron; Pauline D. Blair, associate matron; Loula Belle Elam, secretary; Lillian Blair, treasurer; Vic McClain, conductress; Maude Murphy, chaplain; Hattie Baldwin, organist; Margaret Stacy, Ada; Kathleen Franklin, Ruth; Stella Fannin, Esther; Barletta Wrather, Martha; Lute D. Gullett, Electa; Maude Perry, warder; Yandal Wrather, sentinel. Mrs. Lillian Blair capably acted as installing marshal. Mrs. Ida Henry was later installed by W. G. Ratliff, as marshal. Due to the absence of W. C. Reeves, who was elected associate patron, and Opal Elam, elected associate conductress, the officers for these stations were not installed.

Mrs. Wrather, with assistance of some of the officers and members, had charge of an appropriate addenda for the in-coming worthy matron, Elizabeth Elam. A basket of garden flowers was presented to Mrs. Elam by those having part in the addenda.

Mrs. Lute Gullett was taken to the altar by Mrs. Lillian Blair, and in a way all her own, Mrs. Blair commended Mrs. Gullett for the capable and painstaking manner in which she had served as secretary of the chapter for the past year, and presented her with a bouquet of dahlias in appreciation of her services.

Several interesting talks were made by different members of the chapter, after which the chapter was closed in due form. Refreshments were served by Maude Perry, Maude Murphy, Lula Arnett, and Hattie Baldwin, and a social hour was enjoyed by all present.

Here is a poem that was written by Pvt. Homer W. Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gregory. He is stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo. Maybe this poem will remind some body to write to friends in the army. The poem is entitled "Letters from Home."

While standing in for my mail call Last evening after chow, I wondered who remembered, And who has forgotten now.

The boys all tense and waiting, Their thoughts were all the same, Lips all parted to sound of "here!" For the next may be their name.

We're here to fight for Uncle Sam, And Uncle Sam means you; So, come on, friends, and cheer us up.

And lift our morals, too. Now, we're all doing pretty good We really must confess; But in the army that won't do: It has to be your best.

It makes no difference who you are, Or if we've never met, Those letters give us something We never will forget.

And now the last name has been called, The shutter drops in place; If you were here you would notice The address on some face.

Someone's neglected to write him, Has made him feel that way; The others try to cheer him up— There's always another day.

We know you'll not forget us, And never let us down; So keep those letters coming— From the old home town.

It's "An Old Army Custom"

A SOLDIER'S time is not his own. Every minute of furlough means a lot to him and to his morale. He's away from home and his dear ones and the few hours he gets "in town" mean much to give him a "lift" in spirit and fighting ability. With the service man, every minute counts and when he must report back at a certain time—it means just that, not one minute later.

When granted a furlough, these men turn naturally to Greyhound because schedules are frequent and well-timed . . . no long waits that waste precious hours. Greyhound buses operate right up to most military post gates, saving time, money, and inconvenience. Greyhound gives preference to military men in boarding buses because it is vital for them to report to duty on time. Many of them are changing posts, or reporting to duty for the first time and it is a national expediency that these men be given the fastest means of transportation FIRST. Civilian needs must be secondary. Remember, those boys are in there fighting for you and me.

Yes, both the military and civilian armies prefer Greyhound . . . and Greyhound is bending every effort humanly possible to serve them both.

BOMBS BURST ONCE

By GRANVILLE CHURCH

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Jeff Curtis and his wife, Lee, are already on their way to Tierra Libre when Jeff receives a note from Zora Mitchell warning them not to come. It is too late to turn back, so Jeff decides not to tell Lee, who was opposed to their returning to the tropics. She finally agreed to go only after Jeff had persuaded her that the job of chief engineer for a newly organized fruit company is the chance of a lifetime. He nearly changed his own mind about going after talking long distance to Jerry McInnis, a former associate of his in Tierra Libre, who told him that Zora Mitchell's husband had been killed. It is Mitchell's job that Jeff has been called to fill. They are docking now at Cabeza de Negro, Jeff thinking of Zora's note, "Don't come."

NOW CONTINUE WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

Don't come! And here he was with Lee in the curve of his arm, Buddy and Chuck tugging at his trousers, with Tierra Libre rising up out of the morning sea, the buildings of Cabeza de Negro taking shape. His arm unconsciously tightened about Lee.

Long before they drew close enough to make out details of the sturdy new docks and receiving sheds they saw the motor launch cutting along the coast as though to intercept them. It, too, was headed for the port, and at last Curt recognized the figure standing in the cockpit.

He yanked off his hat to wave it wildly.

"Jerry, you old muckle-head," he shouted. "I might've known you'd come down to meet us."

"Yeh, got your wireless you were coming through Cabeza. Hiya, Curt. Hiya, Lee," called the stocky man in the launch. "It's good to see you folks again. Where're the kids?"

Curt and Lee each picked up a child and stood him on the broad rail. Buddy, from his new vantage point, piped up: "Mummy, what's a muckle-head?"

"A muckle-head, darling," she answered gravely, "is your Uncle Jerry down in the little boat. See?"

There was no opportunity for dallying here. The launch drew away and by the time the Pisces warped up to the dock Jerry McInnis—leathered face, close-cropped hair, weather-stained clothes—was waiting for them.

A dockhand delivered a message from Senor Montaya on a company briefcase. The senor had been delayed in getting down river to meet them but would reach Cabeza in another hour or so.

"That one of their river boats?"

"Yep. They have two. But we can talk later, Curt." Jerry scooped up the children, one in each arm. "Let's find a more comfortable spot for the wait. Lee, you're looking great! If I didn't know better I'd guess you were twenty. Hard to believe these are yours. Marta sends her love and can't wait to see you."

McInnis, chuckling, nodded from Curt's piled luggage to his own launch boy, and the mestizo immediately took possession to stand guard. Then the Associated man led the way from the dock to the one main street of the town. There were signs of recent construction. The new company was booming the village.

"That's a good dock they've built," Curt said. "I suppose Mitchell did it?"

"Sure."

Just the one word, and it sounded strange. Clipped and odd, for McInnis. Curt threw his friend a side-long glance.

"Looks like they're really going it big here."

Associated Fruit Growers—where Curt and McInnis, fresh from M. I. T., had their first years of practical engineering—stretched along the north bank of the Rio Negro, a hundred kilometers or more of banana plantations in an almost unbroken line. These were fed by a narrow-gauge railroad, and there was one handling of fruit from farm pick-up platforms to conveyor belts at shipside.

But the new Compania Agricola Tropical, south of the Negro, had more of a problem. It wasn't possible to run a railroad through to the sea. Salt marshes lay between their concession and the coast and made it necessary to handle fruit by rail from farm to river port, and by steamer or lighters from there to Cabeza where ocean vessels could pick it up. Not so good, two handlings of perishable fruit. Costly, too. And the delay and expense of hauling construction materials up river was sharp in Curt's mind.

"Well, here we are."

McInnis stopped before a small cantina, the facade a blinding, bilious green in the raw sunshine. McInnis put the boys down, led them inside. Lee and Curt followed.

"It's nearly lunch time," McInnis remarked. "Shouldn't the kids be fed, Lee? You know what the cooking is like here, but we can probably get canned soups."

Lee smiled.

"I don't need a brick wall to fall on me. Go ahead, you two. Have a drink. I know you have plenty to walk over. I'll drag out my rusty Spanish and get along."

The men turned to the deserted bar at the end of the room, mounted uncomfortable stools and ordered gin rickeys. While the native bartender mixed them nearby, Curt made conversation.

"Jerry, it'll cost so much to produce and ship fruit here that I don't see how these people can hope to compete with Associated. Not without a subsidy, and Tierra Libre does not grant subsidies."

McInnis grunted.

"Well, that's their business."

"Of course," Curt mused on, "it's a pretty slick hombre who could put anything over on Old Man Moore. I could give even money the Old Man figures they'll go broke getting into production, then plans to bid in and take over the concession cheap. Maybe throw a bridge across the Negro and handle the fruit once from pick-up to the dock at Soledad."

McInnis grinned, but said nothing. The bartender placed the drinks before them, then left to lend a hand in the kitchen lean-to.

Alone now, and with a furtive glance to be sure Lee was occupied with the children, Curt pulled forth Zora Mitchell's letter. He spread it open before the other, and his face was serious, his voice low.

"Jerry, what've I got into?"

McInnis read the note, refolded it, slid it back to Curt. He frowned. He took a long pull at his drink.

"All right, Jerry, out with it," Curt spoke again. "What's up?"

"Well, Curt," his friend said finally, "my reason for coming down here is that I've been told that you're in the tropics."

"That's all right," Curt said. "I'm here, and I'm staying."

"I see," McInnis said. "But I thought you were coming back to the States."

"I did," Curt said. "But I changed my mind."

"Why?"

"Because I've found a

"What kind of opportunity?"

"Engineering. I'm going to

"That's a big job," McInnis said. "You'll need a lot of

"you know no white man would hack a guy to pieces the way Mitch was found."

Curt thought this out.

"Huh, unless it was to hide the fact that it was a white man's killing. And suppose it was a white man, Jerry, or a couple of them? So what? Old Mitch knew his job, but he certainly piled up enemies. You and I know that well enough. He made engineers out of us, first job out of college, but we got plenty bruised in the process. Men with less sense of humor than we have can't take the treatment he dished out."

Curt pulled at his drink reflectively.

"You didn't give me any details," he mentioned after another moment.

"There aren't many. A track-walker found him early in the morning—fortunately before the buzzards did. Let's see, the 11th, it was. About a kilometer outside of Tempujo, in a ditch by the track. The damn zopilotes were wheeling overhead, so he got the section handcar, loaded the body onto it."

"The 11th?" interrupted Curt. "That's the date of their letter to me! They didn't waste any time. Wonder how they picked a man so quickly?"

"Well, the date's correct. I remember because we had an early evening dinner-dance on the Tekia at Soledad the night before Mitch was found. And the Tekia pulled out for Cristobal about 9:00 p. m. on the 10th."

"It did!" exclaimed Curt softly. He looked at McInnis. "Their letter to me was dated the 11th, but air-mailed from Cristobal on the 12th. Didn't notice that discrepancy at first. When I finally did, I figured the letter either made a plane to the Canal Zone, or was misdated in error."

"We have no air service to Panama from Soledad—direct. Course, it's less than two hours by air to the Zone, but I doubt they'd make the flight just for a letter. Anyway, I know a messenger from Tempujo brought mail to the Tekia just before it sailed. Came as our party was breaking up and going ashore."

"Then the chances are the letter to me, dated the 11th, was put aboard the Tekia which sailed the 10th. Actually mailed before Mitch was found murdered. Right?"

"By God, Curt, that's so!" McInnis brought his palm down on the bar. "Mitch was killed some time after dark on the 10th and discovered early on the 11th."

"Meanwhile . . ." Curt fell silent, then looked up keenly. "The two Swedes are white men."

McInnis frowned. "And there are plenty more white men where you're going. No, Curt, the Swedes are not what we'd want for bosom pals, but we've no right to jump to conclusions. Besides," he dropped the scowl and grinned, "I did some checking up myself. Had my motor boy ask questions here and there. The Swede made the run from Tempujo to San Alejo late that afternoon, while Mitch was staying in Tempujo overnight."

Another silence fell between them. Then Curt spoke harshly.

"Jerry, there's more here than meets the eye. If Mitch's killing was a grudge payment, then, Tierra Libre being what it is, there's little we can do about it. Nothing, in fact. And there's nothing for me to worry about. I don't make enemies like Mitch did. But if there's more behind it . . ."

McInnis heaved a sigh.

"Curt, be careful! Don't mount any white charger over Mitch. He asked for it. He's been asking for it for years. And you've got Lee and the kids here now. But if—well, I don't have to say it, but if you find you're in a spot, call on me."

They downed the last of their drinks and swiveled to face the room. But before rejoining Lee Curt brought up another matter.

"By the way," he said, slowly, studying his friend's face, "I saw a destroyer headed for Soledad this morning. American, I suppose—looked like ours. Any particular reason for it?"

"No. The country's quiet as a church meeting. Dr. Arecas only one step removed from being a dictator, sure, but a good one. Seems to be what the people need, they're satisfied. He's solidly entrenched, too, there's no opposition to speak of. But . . ." He paused.

"Well?"

"Well, we had a Navy visit only a couple of weeks ago, and they certainly aren't scheduled to stop in again so soon." He added, in a puzzled tone, "Funny I didn't see the ship as it came down the coast."

"You were pretty low in the water and they were some distance off."

"Huh. Well . . ." He shrugged. They started across the room to rejoin Lee and the boys. McInnis dug his fingers into Curt's arm.

"See Zora Mitchell, Curt, first thing you get to San Alejo. But only to find out if you have anything personal to guard against," he said insistently. "Don't borrow trouble. You're a family man now. What's more, the family's right here with you."

"Yeh, I see what you mean," Curt answered dryly, his eyes on Lee and the children.

What's Happened
To Yours,
Mussolini?

ONE to feed Nazi soldiers? Something's wrong with that picture, Mussolini. Maybe you did start out with ideals, but you got into bad company.

We have spaghetti in America—plenty of it. We send some abroad to the United Nations. We also send great quantities of tomato juice, fruits, vegetables, meats . . . and still have enough left for the home front.

Yes, it's a job. We've never tried to feed half the world before and some equipment is lacking. Our food-canning industry is taxed to the limit. But we have the finest women in the world, Mussolini; they're fighting this war with kettles and spoons, pressure cookers and home-canning jars . . . preserving food at home, each for her own family. You see, it not only means a low food cost and a balanced diet—it means that commercially-canned foods can be loaded on hundreds of "food ships" for our fighting sons and brothers.

That's typical of America, Mussolini—this nation of weaklings. Come over and learn a lesson.
